

111. Veterans Administration Cooperative Study Group on Antihypertensive Agents: Effects of treatment on morbidity in hypertension. II. Results in patients with diastolic blood pressure averaging 90 through 114 mm Hg. JAMA 213:1143, 1970.

References to Chapter 11

190. Donatas ID, Xanthos T, Donata J, et al. Impact of ne-
191. Francis GS, Siegel RM, Goldsmith SR, et al: Acute vasoconstrictor response to intravenous furose-
196. Wilcox CS. New insights into diuretic use in pa-
200. McLay JS, McMurray JJ, Bridges AB, et al: Acute ef-
201. De Pasquale CG, Dunne JS, Minson RB, Arnolda LF. Hypotension is associated with diuretic resist-207a. Allen LA, Turer AT, DeWald T, et al: Continuous versus bolus dosing of furosemide for patients hos-
208. Rudy DW, Voelker JR, Greene PK, et al: Loop diuretics for chronic renal insufficiency: A continu-209. Lahav M, Regev A, Ra'anani P, et al: Intermittent administration of furosemide vs. continuous in-210a. Jentzer JC, DeWald TA, Hernandez AF: Combina-
212. Epstein M, Lepp BA, Hoffman DS, et al: Poten-
216. Van Viet AA, Danker AJM, NAFTA JJ, Overheat FW: Spironolactone in congestive heart failure re-
217. Farquharson CAJ, Struthers AD: Spironolactone...

Ruppert M, Overlack A, Kolloch R, et al: Neurohormonal and metabolic effects of severe and mod-

Cardiovascular Pharmacotherapeutics

